- Use extra slides to break down complex topics

Structure:

- Introduce your topic and outline key points
- Present methods, results, and conclusions
- End with clear take-home messages

Delivery:

- Prepare a spoken script in advance
- Speak slowly and clearly. Some rooms will offer translation for the audience on the screen via AI captioning.
- Arrive at your session room early to familiarise yourself with the venue, room and AV setup
- Notify technicians of special needs before your session
- Please ensure you stick to your allocated time. You will receive a one-minute warning as you approach the end of your slot. If you continue beyond your allotted time, your presentation will be automatically stopped, and the Chair may ask you to conclude immediately. Always manage your time carefully to avoid interruptions.

9. Electioneering

Electioneering, canvassing or otherwise campaigning during the scientific programme is prohibited. Speakers may be asked to leave the stage if they are seen to be campaigning for votes. Any candidate promotion or campaign materials left in session rooms will be removed.

FIGO is committed to participant safety. We have contingency protocols in place, particularly for sensitive or politically charged sessions.

Measures include:

- Monitoring local conditions via trusted partners
- Coordination with security providers
- Clear instructions for staff and delegates in case of disruption
